DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. New corrected drawings in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in this application because Figure 1 contains elements on the y-axis, which are not disclosed in the specification. Figure 3 should be labeled as a top view, or some designation to make it easier to understand. Applicant is advised to employ the services of a competent patent draftsman outside the Office, as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office no longer prepares new drawings. The corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The requirement for corrected drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 2-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

4. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform to current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent No. 6,495,933 B2 to Tokuda et al.

7. As for claim 1, column 4, lines 4-18, teach that when a door makes contact with a person or an object, the driving current of the electric motor, which operates the door, is greatly increased, which in turn is detected by an excess current detection circuit. This excess current detection circuit, triggers a vehicle reaction, in this case, the door is stopped and reopened. This reaction is due to a deviation in drive current above a set point, threshold, or acceptable level. While the Tokuda reference does not specifically teach that an updated set-point value is determined when the door is closed and after the vehicle drives off, in the case of Tokuda, when the trap door system returns to normal operation, i.e. no further obstacles or persons detected, the drive current of the motor will return to a normal operating level, which will take place when the trap door closes and the vehicle has begun to drive away. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to derive a new or updated set point to insure the reliability of the system, as well as provide for the safety of the vehicle passengers.
